Keep "Pegging Away."

Wm. H. Berry, Jr., is observing to the series of advertisements that have been run by Al Rice, the blacksmith, in these advertisements Mr. Rice has shown that intelligence of a high order is needed in the blacksmith workman as well as in other lines of skilled workmen or in any professional pursuit, and this intelligence has been indubitably coupled with kindness to animals. For weeks Mr. Rice has preached that "knowing how" is absolutely required in the proper shoeing of a horse and second he insists that the faithful horse should be shod with the same care that a man exercises in the purchase of shoes for himself. The horse grows nervous on suffering feet as well as a man; the horse that is properly shod is safer for the family to drive, says Mr. Rice in his advertisements, and after explaining how the horse should be shod he follows up the statement that he does his own shoeing or either has a trained expert who works under his personal supervision to do the work of shoeing horses.

The lesson the observer is to learn from the observance of Mr. Berry is that thought placed behind advertising is a valuable thought, and second, advertisements cleverly written are read and that there is very little wasted in the spasmodic advertiser. The fellow that in the homely phrase of Abraham Lincoln "keeps pegging away" is the man who wins.

John D. Rockefeller would go broke if he should spend his entire income trying to prepare a better medicine than Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy for diarrhoea, dysentery or bowel complaints. It is simply impossible, and so says every one that has used it. Sold by all dealers.

JOIN LABOR AND FARMERS

GOMPERS SUGGESTS A REMEDY FOR THE HIGH COST OF LIVING—ORGANIZATION.

PRAY FOR US AND PREY ON US

Men of the Soil Don't Get Too Much For Their Products Nor Wage Earners Too Much For Their Labor, He Says.

St. Louis, May 4.—Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor, in an address before the joint convention of farmers' unions tonight, made a strong plea for a union of farmers and organized labor in bringing better industrial conditions. He denied the report that he came here to organize a new political party but said that when organized industrial workers and organized farmers will stand together in fighting for equality and justice, then will come a new order of things.

"The unrest throughout the country," he said, "is not a protest of poverty and misery, but it is the protest of intelligent and progressive men and women. That there is poverty and misery is undeniable. We need not go far to find men and women begging and pleading for work in spite of our boasted prosperity. Idle men and busy children is a sufficient indictment of our present day conditions.

"The high cost of living, laid at the door of the farmer and wage earner by our opponents, is due to other causes entirely. Our opponents want to pray for us five minutes a week and prey upon us the rest of the week.

Farmers do not get too much for their products, nor wage earners too much for their labor, and if I read the signs of the times rightly, the grinding of the masses for profit of the few will not continue everlasting. We're going to get more, and then more, until the right to life, liberty and pursuit of happiness becomes an actuality and not a glittering generality. The growing together of organized labor and farmers means the end of the battle between dollars and humanity and the end of the struggle of wage to free the industrial worker from being bound to the soil. On the horizon can be seen the dawn of a new day, when shall be ushered in the real brotherhood of man.

"I don't mind opposition, whether it be the edict of a court unfairly administered, or the efforts of a corporation which would curb our manhood, or in the shape of greed, a village constable or the highest executive officer of this country. Such opposition breeds in my very fiber a determination to stand with the rank and file of our people until the eternal day of justice.

"We will fight our battles together, the farmer and the laboring man, buying each other's products. I want to cement the unity between the wealth producers of the country so that, in the battle for justice, peace and equality before the law, the farmer and the wage earner will be found shoulder to shoulder, determined that we shall hand down this republic unimpaired to the next generation."

"THE AMERICAN DREYFUS."
How Collier's Characterizes Glavis, Dismissed Without a Hearing.

New York, May 4.—Under the heading, "The American Dreyfus Case," Collier's Weekly this week publishes a review of the evidence produced in the Ballinger investigation. The review presents chiefly familiar material. One new point is the statement that Glavis never saw the evidence against him and had no chance to make a defense before the president authorized his removal. The article says:

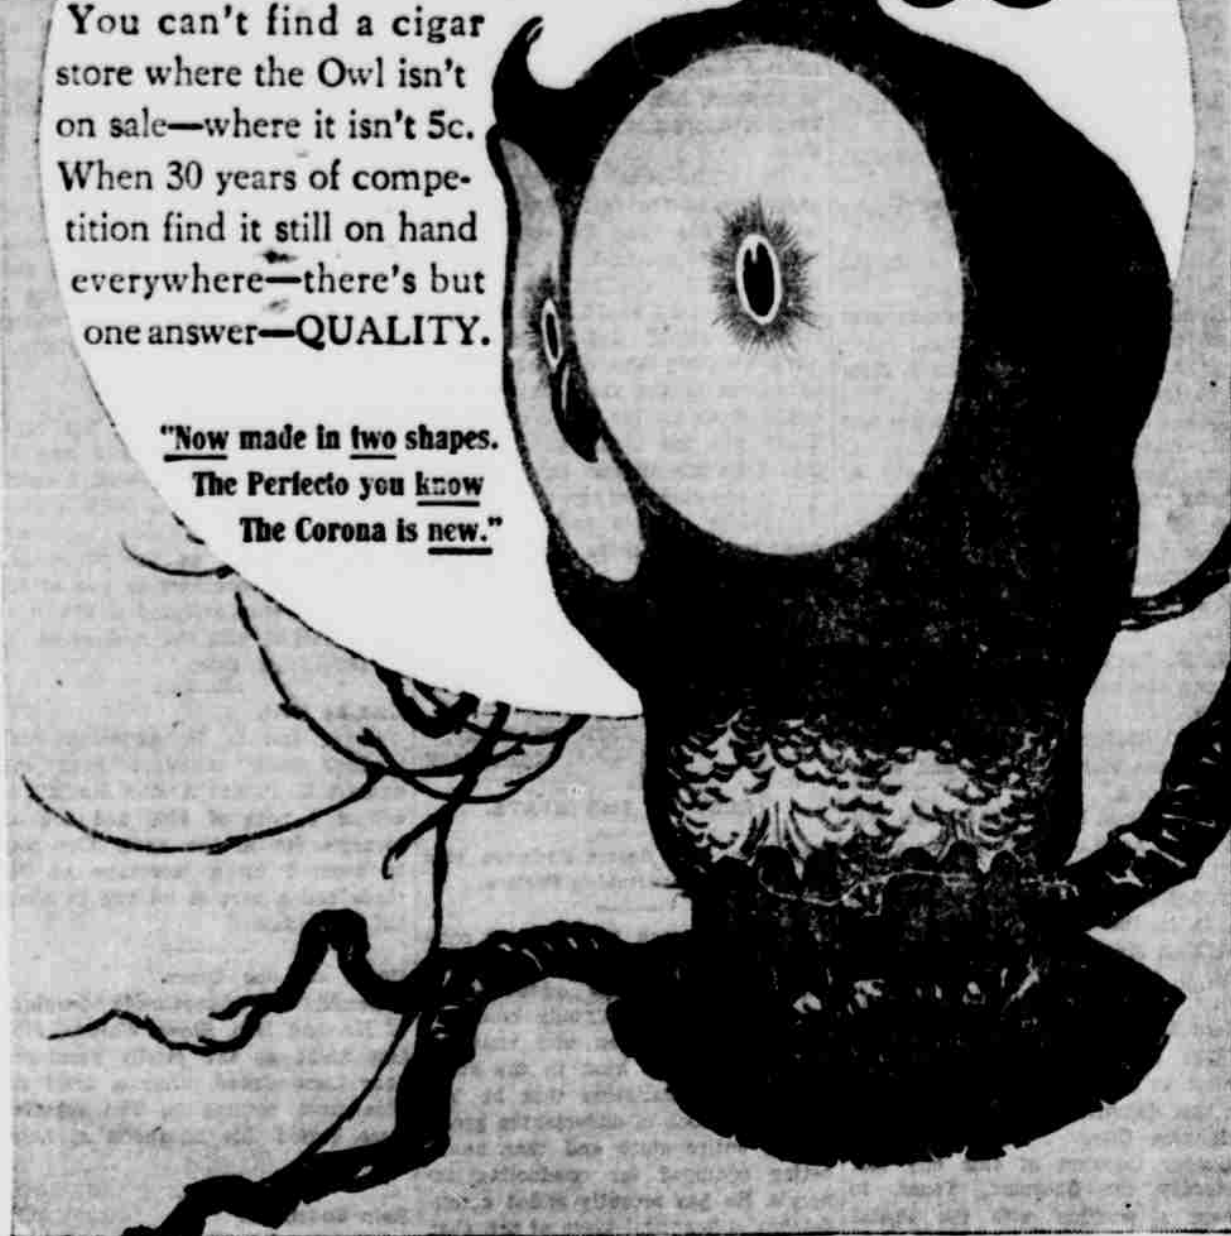

"The history of the world seems to make clear the fact that when a subordinate in any organization undertakes to bring to light truth which is unwelcome to that organization, he is very likely to be crushed. The powerful machinery is usually too much for him. As we say in America, the steam roller goes over him.

"The history of Glavis is the history of a man who presented to the national administration an ideal of straight conduct and a clear case of faces. The administration saw that to act upon these facts and this ideal would make trouble. Therefore it undertook to suppress the facts and crush the trouble maker. Mr. Ballinger did it mainly to avoid disappointing his friends and clients. Mr. Wickesham did it because it seemed easier to make an end of one annoying subordinate than to open up a question involving the government, the president, members of the senate and the house and some of the largest contributors to the fund which helped to elect Mr. Taft. The president did it, either for the reasons that influenced Mr. Wickesham, or because he did not study the matter sufficiently to understand it.

Before the investigation began, Mr. Glavis had not had a fair chance to be heard. His enemies were in the intimate circle of the administration, in constant touch with the president, busy explaining away everything Glavis said and in putting in the most favorable light everything they did themselves. Glavis, on the other hand, was an outsider, to whom was never given an opportunity to discuss the situation at all with the attorney general and only slightly with the president, and who never even saw the charges against him which were put in the president's hands. In other words, when Glavis made certain charges against members of the interior department, the president gave these persons every opportunity to state their views to him and he accepted these views. When, however, in order to punish Glavis, Ballinger and his friends charged him with suppression, concealment, delay and other faults, the president did not hear Glavis at all, but accepted the charges against him ex parte and discharged him. Until Senate Document 248 was printed during the present investigation, Glavis never saw the written statements of a single person through whose representations he was condemned and dismissed.

rid of the trouble until the kidneys are cured. There is no other remedy for sick kidneys quite equal to Doan's Kidney Pills. This simple vegetable formula has been in use for 75 years and has never been excelled because it is a remedy for the kidneys only—does not act on the bowels nor on any other organs. It soothes while it stimulates, relieves all congestion and irritation, cures backache, regulates the urine and restores a perfect filtering of the blood.

Ardmore Proof.

B. F. Mills, 521 K street, north-west, Ardmore, Okla., says: "I just as willingly recommend Doan's Kidney Pills now as I did in 1902, as I believe that my statement will be the means of leading some other sufferer of kidney trouble to try this remedy. I was in poor health, owing to weak kidneys and the least exertion was sure to bring on an attack of backache. At such times I could not stoop or lift. There were other symptoms which told me that my kidneys were out of order and when I had Doan's Kidney Pills brought to my attention, I procured a box at the City Drug Store. Soon after I began using them, the pain in my back disappeared and my health improved. A few more boxes of Doan's Kidney Pills effected a cure and from that day to this I have not had the slightest return of the trouble."
